

SM4 MEN'S MINISTRY

Men's 101

WE LIVE NEAR THE 101 — WE'RE
GROUNDED IN PSALM 101

We are committed to building up men who are learning to walk in all of God's authority.

Grounded in Psalm 101, 101 Men is a ministry dedicated to empowering men to live out their God-given roles with strength, integrity, and purpose. Living near the 101 freeway, our ministry name reminds us that, like this vital road, men must be foundational, leading themselves, their families, and their communities in righteousness.

At SM4, we are committed to building up men who are not just surviving, but thriving spiritually, emotionally, and physically. We equip men to rise above the challenges of life by standing firm in God's authority and aligning their lives with His Word.

The Power of "I Will"

As a man of God, when you say "I WILL," you are declaring a spiritual stand. You are choosing to walk in authority, imposing God's will on your circumstances, your relationships, and your spiritual battles. This isn't about imposing your will on others, but rather standing firm against the schemes that hell sets against you, your family, and your friends. Psalm 101 serves as a guide for men in this journey, where King David lays out five powerful “I will” statements that we can frame our lives around.

I Will Worship the Lord (Psalm 101:1)

Worship is more than a song—it’s a way of life. As men, we are called to be leaders in worship, modeling a heart of devotion to God in everything we do. Psalm 101:1 reminds us that worship starts with gratitude and praise. When we worship the Lord with our whole heart, we set the tone for our homes, churches, and communities. Worshiping God isn't just a Sunday activity, but a daily practice that shapes the spiritual health of our lives and those around us.

I Will Live Blamelessly (Psalm 101:2-4)

In a world that often promotes compromise, living blamelessly is countercultural. Psalm 101:2-4 challenges men to live lives of integrity, pursuing holiness in their thoughts, actions, and relationships. As men of God, we are called to walk in blamelessness—not just when others are watching, but in the quiet places where our true character is formed. This blameless life protects not only ourselves but also our families, helping us build healthy homes grounded in God's truth.

I Will Not Tolerate Fools (Psalm 101:3, 5, 7)

King David's declaration to not tolerate foolishness is a call to wisdom and discernment. As men, we are responsible for guarding our hearts and homes from influences that could lead us astray. This means being careful about the media we consume, the company we keep, and the choices we make. Surrounding ourselves with Godly counsel and avoiding foolishness in all forms is crucial to living a life of purpose and protection for our loved ones.

I Will Have Faithful Friends (Psalm 101:6)

The importance of community cannot be overstated. As men, we need faithful friends who will stand with us, encourage us, and hold us accountable. Psalm 101:6 highlights the value of surrounding ourselves with men of integrity. We are not meant to walk this journey alone. Godly friendships strengthen us and help us stay focused on our calling as husbands, fathers, and leaders in our homes. At SM4, we foster these friendships through regular gatherings and small groups where men can grow together in faith.

I Will Free Others (Psalm 101:8)

Freedom in Christ isn't just for us—it's something we are called to bring to others. As men who walk in God's authority, we are called to fight for the freedom of those around us, standing against injustice, addiction, and spiritual oppression. Psalm 101:8 reminds us that we are not just leaders for our own sake but are called to set others free by standing on God's truth. This applies to our roles as fathers, mentors, and friends, where our leadership can break chains and lead others into the freedom that Christ offers.

I Will Free Others (Psalm 101:8)

We are actively building a community of men committed to growing together in faith, strength, and spiritual health. Whether through our regular gatherings or small groups, we provide a space for men to be sharpened, encouraged, and empowered to lead healthy families and communities.
